RYAN:

Financial decisions are really big decisions, and I see people every day that just don't make them, and they choose not to make them because they're so hard and they're so scary. And the opportunity that we have at Manulife and with technology, is how do we make those decisions easier, and so by having a core development platform we're enabling our hundreds and soon to be thousands of engineers around the world to build in ways that allow them to be in market quickly, to try new things, to experiment in pursuit of having more meaningful customer relationships.
